What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files placed on your computer, tablet or mobile device when you visit a website. They help websites function correctly and can remember information about your visit.

How we use cookies

Our website currently uses only cookies that are necessary for the website to function correctly.

We do not currently use cookies for advertising, personalised marketing or tracking visitors across other websites.

Cookies used on this website

Cookie	Purpose	Duration	Type
wordpress_test_cookie	Checks whether your browser is able to accept cookies.	Session	Strictly necessary
bid_1_password_protected_auth	Remembers that a visitor has entered the correct password and has been authorised to access the password-protected website.	Session	Strictly necessary

A session cookie is normally deleted when you close your browser.

Strictly necessary cookies

Strictly necessary cookies are required for the website or a service requested by the visitor to function properly.

These cookies cannot be switched off through the website. As they are necessary for the website to operate, we do not ask for consent before using them.

Managing cookies in your browser

You can use your browser settings to view, block or delete cookies.

Please be aware that blocking strictly necessary cookies may prevent parts of this website from working correctly. For example, you may be unable to access password-protected pages.

Instructions for managing cookies are available through the help section of your chosen browser.

Third-party websites

Our website may contain links to external websites operated by other organisations. Those websites may use their own cookies and are responsible for providing information about how they use them.

We recommend reviewing the cookie and privacy policies of any external website you visit.

Changes to this policy

We may update this Cookie Policy if the website changes or if we introduce new services that use cookies.

We regularly review the cookies used by the website to ensure that the information on this page remains accurate.
